ABSTRACT

The directory represents an effort to inventory those agencies currently offering direct services to hearing impaired residents of the Metropolitan Washington area. Entries were limited to agencies within the Washington Metropolitan area, to national organizations with local affiliates, and to agencies providing "helping" services such as community, social, educational, health care, counseling. The directory is divided into four sections. The first provides organization listings alphabetically by name of the service provider. Entries include the name, address, phone number, contact person, description of services, and fees, if any. The second section lists places of worship, churches and synagogues, that offer signed/interpreted services. The third section lists public places with assistive listening systems including auditoriums, theaters, and places of worship. A two-section index lists organizations either by name or by the type of service provided. (DB)

About the cover: The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) has given permission to the National Information Center on Deafness to use the Metrorail System Map as the cover design for the Directory of Programs and Services for Hearing Impaired People in the Metropolitan Washington Area. The majority of the organizations listed in the Directory are accessible by public transportation. You can obtain bus and subway route information by contacting: WMATA, 600 Fifth Street, NW, Washington, DC 20001 or (202) 637-7000 V, (202) 638-3780 TDD.

Gallaudet University is an equal opportunity employer/educational institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet receive substantial financial support from the U.S. Department of Education.

PREFACE

The National Information Center on Deafness, (NICD) at Gallaudet University serves the entire nation, providing answers to requests for information about deafness in general and about programs and services for hearing impaired people. By virtue of its location on the Gallaudet University campus, NICD receives many information requests from residents of the Metropolitan Washington area.

Thus, since its inception in 1980, NICD has been collecting information on area resources in order to refer local callers to appropriate services. Building an information collection is time consuming work. In the case of information regarding local services, the collection should be shared with as many potential users as possible. Such sharing saves time and it provides others with a clear picture of the many services available.

The DIRECTORY OF PROGRAMS AND SERVICES FOR HEARING IMPAIRED PEOPLE IN THE METROPOLITAN WASHINGTON AREA represents an effort to inventory those agencies currently offering direct services to hearing impaired members of the community and to make that information easily accessible to all who are looking for such assistance. This Directory is an update of the 1985-1986 volume. The number of agencies listed has grown slightly and the services have been expanded by inclusion of a list of public places with assistive listening devices. This volume continues to provide tangible evidence not only of the growing awareness of the needs of deaf and hard of hearing persons but also shows the many excellent resources available to the hearing impaired community.

The National Information Center on Deafness acknowledges with sincere appreciation the support of The Beethoven Society of Washington, D.C. which provided grant funds to undertake this revision. We are pleased that such support has come from the local community and proud that NICD is able to continue to provide this directory for use by the local community.

Loraine DiPietro
Director
National Information Center on Deafness

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The National Information Center on Deafness wishes to thank the many individuals, agencies, and organizations that completed the Directory questionnaire. Their responses made it possible to compile a directory identifying programs and services that are available to the hearing impaired community.

We would like to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Howard "Rocky" Stone and Mr. Selig Starr of Self Help for Hard of Hearing People for their list of public places with Assistive Listening Systems. We would also like to thank the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority for the use of the Metrorail System Map.

The staff at the National Information Center on Deafness has contributed significantly to the preparation of this Directory. Cheryl Barto and David Wolfe deserve recognition for the collection of the information and design of the Directory. A special thanks to Loraine DiPietro for her continued support and encouragement during the development of the Directory.

INTRODUCTION

The National Information Center on Deafness is pleased to present the DIRECTORY OF PROGRAMS AND SERVICES FOR HEARING IMPAIRED PEOPLE IN THE METROPOLITAN WASHINGTON AREA. The Directory has been designed to help readers locate agencies which serve deaf and hard of hearing people.

In developing any directory, it is necessary to set limitations. Basically, we have established two criteria to determine inclusion in this Directory. First, entries have been limited to agencies within the Washington Metropolitan area, with a few exceptions. Although some Maryland and Virginia agencies are located outside the Metropolitan area, their services are available to all residents of that state. National organizations are also listed along with local chapters or affiliates. Secondly, types of services have been limited primarily to agencies which provide "helping" services such as community, social, educational, health care, counseling, and TDD relay services.

We also felt it was appropriate to avoid duplicating the excellent resources which are identified in the following directories:

GWA - Greater Washington Area TDD Community Directory
Deaf Telecommunicators of Greater Washington, Inc.
P.O. Box 2125
Capital Plaza Branch
Hyattsville, Maryland 20784
(301) 322-1035 V/TDD

Provides a comprehensive listing of business and community TDD numbers.

Guide to Professional Services in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology
American Speech-Language-Hearing Association
10801 Rockville Pike
Rockville, Maryland 20852
(301) 897-8682 V/TDD
(800) 638-8255

Provides a reference listing of clinical programs, individuals, industrial hearing conservation specialists, and resource personnel who provide services to the general public throughout the United States and Canada. The National Association for Hearing and Speech Action, ASHA's consumer affiliate, will put consumers in touch with local speech-language and hearing services.

Community Services for Deaf-Blind People
Hearing-Vision Impaired Program
Gallaudet University
College Hall
800 Florida Avenue, NE
Washington, DC 20002
(202) 651-5044

Identifies direct services for deaf-blind people in the Metropolitan Washington area. Directory is available in large print or braille.

Although area codes are provided, most agencies listed in the Directory are within the local calling area, and area codes need not be used. Should you have any problems reaching an agency, call AT&T Operator Assistance at (800) 855-1155 TDD or 411 Voice.

Inclusion in this Directory does not constitute endorsement by the National Information Center on Deafness or Gallaudet University. No attempt has been made to evaluate the resources listed.

HOW TO USE THE DIRECTORY

The Directory is divided into four sections.

I. Organization listings--The entries are listed in alphabetical order by name of the service provider. The entries include the name, address, phone number (both Voice and TDD), contact person, description of services and a list of the primary services provided. We have attempted to indicate the mode of communication used with hearing impaired people, whether or not the agency provides interpreter services, and fees, if any, for the services provided. Local affiliates of national organizations are listed in the same entry as the parent organization. The National Information Center on Deafness is not responsible for the accuracy of the information submitted to us by the organizations; therefore, we suggest that you contact the individual organizations directly to obtain further information regarding their services.

II. Places of Worship--This section identifies churches and synagogues that offer signed/interpreted services.

III. Public Places with Assistive Listening Systems--This section, an addition to the Directory, lists auditoriums, theaters, and places of worship that have installed an assistive listening system.

IV. Index--The index is divided into two sections. Section A lists organizations alphabetically by the organization name. Section B allows you to locate an organization by the type of service provided.

If you know of an organization that is not included in this Directory, or if you have any comments regarding the Directory, please let us know.

Washington, DC 20002
(202) 651-5000 V/TDD

Gallaudet University is a multipurpose educational institution and resource center that serves hearing impaired people around the world through a full range of academic, research, and public service programs.

Gallaudet was authorized to confer collegiate degrees through a charter signed by President Abraham Lincoln in 1864. Today more than 2,200 students, including a limited number of hearing undergraduate students, are enrolled in degree programs at the University's two campuses in Washington, DC. The University is committed to development of the intellect; to research aimed at improving the lives of hearing impaired persons, their friends and family, and professionals who work with them.

In addition to the University, both the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School (KDES) and the Model Secondary School for the Deaf (MSSD) are located on Kendall Green. Refer to pages 47 and 62 for a full description of these schools.

The University has many departments that can be of service to hearing impaired people. Listed below are the department names and phone numbers. All phone numbers are both voice and TDD unless otherwise listed. You may contact these departments directly by phone or mail.

PUBLIC PLACES WITH ASSISTIVE LISTENING SYSTEMS

Assistive Listening Systems help hard of hearing people to hear better and understand more in large areas that are subject to interference such as background noise, reverberation, and distance between the speaker and listener. Used with microphones placed next to or coupled to an existing public address system, assistive listening systems deliver sound (signal) directly to the listener's ear at a consistent volume, despite any interference (noise).

The following listing, provided by Self Help for Hard of Hearing People, Inc., includes places of worship, theaters, and other public places that have assistive listening systems.

The entries are listed alphabetically by state, District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia, and within each state they are listed alphabetically by name. They provide one or more of the following systems: Audio Induction Loop System, FM System, AM System, Infrared System, and/or Hardwire System.

Audio Induction Loop System: A microphone or sound source is connected to an amplifier's audio input. This signal is then fed into a coil of wire which is placed around the perimeter of the seating arrangement. A listener within the loop encircled area picks up the signal inductively through a hearing aid equipped with a telecoil (denoted by a "T" position on the aid's on/off switch); or, if without hearing aids, by using a receiver/device with built in telecoil, volume control and earpiece. Audio induction loop systems are subject to signal "spillover" into areas above, below and adjacent to the looped area.

FM System: A wireless system. Uses a designated FM radio frequency to carry a signal (transmits good sound fidelity) to receivers/devices used by listeners seated anywhere, within limited range. It will broadcast through walls.

AM System: Also wireless. Uses a selected AM radio frequency to broadcast a signal (subject to interference) to receivers and personal AM radios tuned to that exact frequency. It will broadcast through walls and has a limited range.

Infrared System: A panel of emitters floods the seating area with invisible, harmless infrared light rays, transmitting a signal (sound). Listeners use receivers/devices that pick up the infrared signal and convert it into sound.

Receivers must be worn in the panel's direct line of sight. Infrared signal will not broadcast through walls.

Hardwired System: Each listener is directly connected to the sound source, i.e., a unit/device with volume control and earpiece, permanently mounted at designated seats.
